WITH THREE-fourths of the long Memorial Day holiday still ahead, Pennsylvania's count of death by automobile stood at six—a somewhat less tragic record than some safety experts expected.

U. S. Orders
Hungarian
Attache Home

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—The United States has ordered Lt. Karoly Meszaros, assistant Hungarian military attache, to leave the country by Monday. The move is apparently in retaliation for the ouster of an American officer from Communist Hungary last month.

The State Department, in announcing the ejection of Meszaros, gave no reason for its decision. But last month the Soviet satellite government at Budapest accused Capt. Thomas R. Gleason of espionage and gave him 48 hours to get out. Gleason was assistant U. S. military attache in Budapest.

The action against Meszaros was taken yesterday when Dep. Asst. Secretary Jacob Beam sent a curt note to Hungary's ranking diplomat here, Tibor Zador, first secretary of the legation.

Writing
"I have to inform you," Beam wrote "that the presence in the United States of Lt. Karoly Meszaros, assistant military attache at the legation of the Hungarian People's Republic, is no longer agreeable to the United States government."

The note then called for the officer's departure not later than June 3.

State Department press officer Joseph Reap said there was no connection between this action and a demand by Hungary last weekend that the United States substantially reduce its legation staff in Budapest.

Official relations between the United States and Hungary have been strained since last fall when Soviet troops put down the anti-Communist rebellion in Hungary and supported the imposition of a regime under Red leader Janos Kadar.

The ouster of Meszaros will leave Hungary with a legation staff made up of 2 diplomats, 1 military attache, 4 clerks and 4 housekeeping employees.

The United States has 13 diplomats in Budapest, 5 attaches representing the armed forces and about 10 clerical aides.

Britain Scraps Curbs Highway Death Toll Lagging

THE HIGHWAY death toll continued to lag behind estimates Thursday night as millions of Americans headed homeward from Memorial Day outings.

The president of the National Safety Council, Ned H. Dearborn, said figures gathered last night showed "the toll still is running behind" the council's preholiday estimate.

The council had estimated 120 persons would be killed in traffic accidents alone in the 30-hour period between 6 p.m. Wednesday and midnight Thursday.

Latest tabulations showed 74 road accident deaths, 23 drowning deaths and 30 miscellaneous accidental deaths.

Last Year
Figures for about the same time on Memorial Day a year ago showed just two less highway fatalities—54. The final highway toll for Memorial Day last year reached 109.

The council said the normal accidental death toll for a nonholiday Thursday at this time of year is 75.

A tabulation made by the Associated Press for a 30-hour period from Wednesday night through Thursday two weeks ago showed 85 traffic fatalities, 16 deaths by drowning and 45 from other causes for a total of 146.

The last four-day Memorial Day weekend was in 1950. In that period 347 persons lost their lives in traffic mishaps. However, there are many more automobiles on the nation's highways now than then.

The Council did not make any estimate concerning the number of traffic deaths for the four days this year because many offices and stores will be open as usual Friday.

The greatest number of highway fatalities ever recorded on a four-day weekend occurred at Christmas 1956. The total was 706. In addition there were 54 deaths from fires and 124 others lost their lives in accidents related to the holiday.

Dr. Hough, who practiced and taught medicine in Washington many years, died of cancer Sunday at Deland, Fla.

Mrs. Abdushell said her husband left for Miss Hough's apartment about 8 a.m.

"She didn't want him to come over," Mrs. Abdushell told reporters, "but he insisted on going."

At 9:15 a.m., a representative of the Evening Star stopped by Miss Hough's apartment to get a photograph of her father. The Star man, William R. Basham, said she appeared to be under the normal strain associated with a death in the family.

At 9:32 a.m. the man in the next apartment, P. D. Tleson, heard a shot.

At 9:43 a.m. Lt. Lawrence K. Hartnett of the homicide squad said Miss Hough called police headquarters and said: "Please come quietly. There has been a shooting at the Woodner. It is not a suicide."

Police found the body of Abdushell lying on the couch with seven bullet wounds.

United States Aides Austria

VIENNA, May 30 (AP)—The United States this week turned over the equivalent of another five million dollars to Austria to help with costs arising from the influx of Hungarian refugees.

It represents the second half of 10 million dollars provided to supply surplus food and is in addition to 48 millions provided for Hungarian refugee relief and mostly spent in Austria. Private American donations amount to 18 millions.

Revolutionary Councils

COLOMBO, May 30 (AP)—Police sources say Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike has been told that Ceylon's Communists, who support the government, have decided to form underground revolutionary councils. This would be a switch.

Trade To Begin With Red China

LONDON, May 30 (AP)—Britain today defied American objections and scrapped a wide range of Western curbs on trade with Red China. The State Department in Washington said the United States was "most disappointed."

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd predicted most of Britain's allies "will follow our example" in wiping out restrictions on 200 items hitherto banned for sale to Peiping.

He stressed in the House of Commons that Britain will continue to ban export to China of the same war potential goods which the allies outlaw for shipment to Russia and other Communist nations.

Unlikely
British traders who have been dealing with Red China hailed the British decision. But one industrialist said an immediate jump in Chinese business was unlikely. The Foreign Office, however, estimated that British exports to mainland China would be doubled to a rate of about 60 million dollars a year. This would be less than one per cent of her total sales to other countries. Britain currently imports about 36 million dollars worth of goods from Red China yearly.

There have been British-American differences for the past three years over whether to ease curbs on China trade. They came under intensive discussion the past three weeks in Paris where a group of 15 countries—which operate the control system—searched for a compromise.

The State Department explained American disappointment at the British action in a statement in Washington.

"The United States believed that the security interests of the free world would be best promoted by the maintenance of a significant differential," it said.

Britain argued that China has been steadily getting banned goods through "the back door of Russia," which could freely buy the questioned items. The trade-hungry British additionally pressed for a settlement rather than for a compromise because they wanted to avoid the need to raise the troublesome issue again.

The Atlantic Pact allies clamped embargoes on trade with Red China in 1951 after the U. N. branded the Peiping regime an aggressor for entering the Korean War. The controls are run by the NATO allies—plus Japan, but minus Iceland.

Britain has recognized the Peiping regime while the United States has not.

ONWARD, Miss., May 30 (AP)—Four Mississippi penitentiary convicts who had dodged officers five days in swamps since their escape last Saturday were caught today while eating breakfast in a Negro's cabin.

The four fugitives were Albert Estes, 42, serving 199 years for armed robbery and kidnapping; Francis Abney, 31, serving five years for grand larceny; John Cornette, 26, serving 25 years for armed robbery; and Billy Dean Bramlett, 34, serving life for the 1947 robbery of a Lake, Miss., bank.

Russian Leader Warns Of Bomb

Prize-Winning Terrier Caught

NEW YORK, May 30 (AP)—A prize-winning Bedlington terrier which has been roaming Idlewild Airport since it escaped a handler after arriving from England last Friday was caught today.

Boy Returned To Italian Consul

NEW YORK, May 30 (AP)—Chicago's Italian consul general and his wife were joyously reunited here today with their 14-year-old son who vanished 44 days ago and was feared dead. The boy, Vittorio Barattieri said he ran away "just for some excitement."

Vittorio said that he already had decided before he was spotted on a street here last night by a man who saw his picture on television two weeks ago — to return home because "I ran out of money."

He had $120 in savings of his own when he left home. After flying to New York, he said, he earned additional funds as a restaurant busboy and as a messenger.

Slight
Vittorio, a slight, serious-faced youngster with blue eyes and a crew haircut, told newsmen after the reunion with his parents that he knew his folks would worry about him but didn't think they would believe any harm had befallen him.

The parents, Count and Countess Ludovico Barattieri, were distressed by only one thing after the reunion—they said they still were unable to understand the boy's action despite his explanation.

Vittorio had been on his way to school classes at Loyola Academy when he disappeared April 16. He is a sophomore there.

His father and mother instituted a nationwide search, voicing fears he had been kidnapped. On April 30 the father told authorities he was convinced that the boy was dead.

However, on May 13 the mother went on the NBC-TV program "Today" to make a public appeal for help. During the program a photograph of the boy was shown.

A man who saw the television program spotted the youth on a Manhattan street last night and notified the FBI. Agents soon had the boy in custody and telephoned the parents, who were stunned to disbelief until FBI men put the boy himself on the phone.

Vittorio told newsmen he left Chicago "just on the spur of the moment — just to provide myself with self-assurance and maturity."

Americans Pay Tribute To Memory Of Dead Servicemen

By The Associated Press
AMERICANS the world over paid tribute yesterday to the memory of their countrymen who had died in the nation's cause since 1776.

In some places, the observances of Memorial Day included men marching to the beat of drums and the shrill of fifes. In others, the observances were quiet.

In Minneapolis, two Navy jet planes flying a salute to the war dead collided and crashed in flames before the eyes of a thousand cemetery visitors.

One pilot was killed and six civilians were injured when one of the planes smashed into a residential street.

In Washington, Donald A. Quarles, deputy undersecretary of defense, called on the United States to build sufficient military strength to "make certain that war will destroy those who initiate war."

Speaking
Speaking at Arlington National cemetery, Quarles said, "The unique hope of our generation is that by acting wisely and courageously, we can eliminate war as a pattern of human behavior, as surely as we have eradicated so many diseases that formerly plagued mankind."

In the same cemetery, Miss Katie Guiton and her sister, Lillian, elderly residents of Washington, laid a bouquet of white flowers on the grave of Ruth Patricia Watson, an officer in the British Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

It is their annual practice to decorate the grave of a foreign serviceman or woman, in appreciation for the way graves of U. S. servicemen are tended abroad.

In Annapolis, six Midshipmen cast an anchor of poppies onto Chesapeake Bay in a traditional ceremony sponsored by the Georgia American Legion Auxiliary.

A bugler blew taps and the U. S. Naval Academy guns boomed a slow 21-gun salute while the Midshipsmen, all from Georgia, performed the ceremony.

In New York, 5,000 persons marched in blue skies through the sunlight and shade of Riverside Drive in the city's 90th annual Memorial Day observance.

A crowd of about 45,000 lined the route. Onlookers applauded both the flags of the Grand Army of the Republic and a Confederate flag carried before a 60-piece band from Wake Forest College in North Carolina.

In the vanguard of the parade two veterans of the Spanish-American War of 1898 marched side by side—Michael Kelly, 82, of the Bronx, and 80-year-old Isadore Cohen, of Brooklyn.

Patti Beems, pretty soprano; Bob Sands, veteran tenor; Frank Davis, popular Negro bass-baritone, and Shawnee's father-son singing team—Leonard and Bob Kranendonk.

Two newcomers who favorably impressed their first local artists were vocalists Glory Allyn and Stewart Rose, each of whom was featured in solo numbers.

The two-hour program ranged from calypso to classical, from patriotic to religious.

Eight Killed During Riots In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon, May 30 (AP)—Political violence exploded in Beirut today. Eight rioters were killed by gunfire and scores of others injured before the army restored order.

It was the first serious trouble in advance of parliamentary elections set to begin June 9 in this traditionally pro-Western Arab nation. The elections are looked upon as a test of strength for pro-Egyptian and pro-Western forces.

The rioting flared when troops and police tried to stop a demonstration and general strike led by two former premiers who are in opposition to Premier Sami Solh. The two are Saeb Salam, and Abdullah Yafi.

Salam was hit in the face by a rifle butt wielded by a soldier. He suffered a three-inch gash on his face and was taken to a hospital for treatment. The government announced he is under arrest, along with other rioters.

Opposition
The opposition National Front called the demonstration and strike after Solh's government refused demands that it resign and let a neutral government conduct the elections, in which more than 200 candidates are seeking 66 parliamentary seats.

Shouts of "Down with Solh" and "Down with Eisenhower" were heard. There were also cries of opposition to Camille Chamoun, who has been Lebanon's president since 1952.

Solh's government endorsed East Doctrine. Parliament approved the action last April 6 but six deputies resigned in protest. Since then the opposition has assailed the government for its pro-Western stand, and demanded that Lebanon ally itself with Egypt and Syria.

Seeking to uphold a government ban on demonstrations, the soldiers and police moved in today on a crowd being led by Salam and Yafi.

Shots were fired into the air in an attempt to scatter the demonstrators. When this failed, the soldiers began to use their rifle butts as clubs.

Official
A Lebanese military official said eight persons were killed including one girl. A government announcement put the death toll at five, but apparently lagged behind the actual fatality count.

At the height of the rioting four U. S. ambassadors to Middle East countries were in conference. They were Raymond A. Hare from Cairo, Lester D. Mallory from Amman, James S. Moore Jr. from Damascus, and Donald R. Heath in Beirut. A U. S. Embassy spokesman said no extraordinary precautions were taken at the embassy, and there was no mention of injury to Americans.

Rain Pelts Most Of U. S.

By The Associated Press
RAINS DRENCHED most of the nation Thursday, marring the summer's first holiday—Memorial Day.

Sprinkles and thunderstorms persisted in the southern, central and western portions of the country throughout the day. But there was a band of fair and sunny weather extending from the Lower Mississippi Valley to New England.

Thunderstorms
Thunderstorms in Oklahoma and Kansas poured water into swollen rivers and streams, increasing threats of more flooding.

Flooding was expected in the Cedar and Iowa River basins in Iowa after very heavy thunderstorms.

Intense thunderstorms hit scattered parts of Florida. More than two inches of rain fell in Vero Beach. The rains showed some signs of diminishing elsewhere in the South Atlantic states, but the Carolinas received more than an inch.

Annual Memorial Day Parade Attracts Large Area Crowd

Haas Speaks On Unknown Soldier

ANNUAL MEMORIAL Day parade in The Stroudsburgs attracted a large crowd yesterday as fair weather let the parade go off on schedule and without a hitch.

At Prospect Cemetery, East Stroudsburg, Horatio W. Haas Jr., national commander of the Society of the 28th Division, recounted the story of the Unknown Soldier.

After World War One, Haas said, one casket was taken from each of the four cemeteries in France where most Americans who died in the war had been buried.

The caskets were placed in a church. Identification of them was impossible, he said. At a given time, a U.S. Army sergeant entered the church and placed a rose on one of the caskets. This casket was chosen for entombment at Arlington National Cemetery, he said.

Ceremony

The ceremony at the cemetery brought to a close the 1957 observance of Memorial Day in the two boroughs. The commemoration began at 8 a.m. with the placement of wreaths at Doughboy and American Legion monuments in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

Units taking part in the parade included Companies F and G of the National Guard, George N. Kemp Post Drum and Bugle Corps, bands from Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Smithfield schools, the Salvation Army, Girls and Boy Scout groups.

Front echelon units included commanding officers from the VFW, 28th Division, American Legion, Marine Corps Reserves and the Marine Corps League. Honored guests were the burgesses of the two boroughs, Hal H. Harris and Jesse R. S. Flory.

Acme Hose Co. held a service at the graveside of Ernest Swellin.

St. John's To Improve Parking Area

AT A WELL attended meeting of the Brotherhood of St. John's Lutheran Church on Tuesday night, the men decided to place shale in the parking lot to the rear of the church. It was also decided to change the time of election of officers to September as recommended by the Brotherhood of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania.

The men agreed to visit Camp Miller on Saturday, June 8, and help to get the camp into readiness for the opening of the season. They also decided to hold a father-son outing at Camp Miller during the month of August.

Reports were given of the laymen's meeting at Buck Hill Falls last week by Charles A. Keiper and Edward Hardenstine.

A report marking the success of the 50th anniversary banquet which was held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel on May 15th was made by John A. Kitchen, chairman of the committee in charge. The committee was discharged with a rising vote of thanks.

Miles C. Green presented the topic and led in the discussion on the theme "Has the Little Fish a Chance?"

Hardenstine, brotherhood president, appointed the following ushers to serve during the month of June: Arthur E. Kitzman, Willard Kintz, Jr., M. W. Altomose and Parke W. Kunkle and the following to serve for the 8 a.m. Holy Communion service on June 9—Edward Hardenstine, Richard Shook, Harold Blair and William Heckman. The next meeting will be held on the fourth Tuesday of June. The refreshment committee for this meeting is composed of Edward Steinhauer, George Smolensky and Richard Shook.

Mail Box Program Underway

POSTAL OFFICIALS reported yesterday that the annual rural mail box improvement program will be observed for a two-week period beginning next Monday.

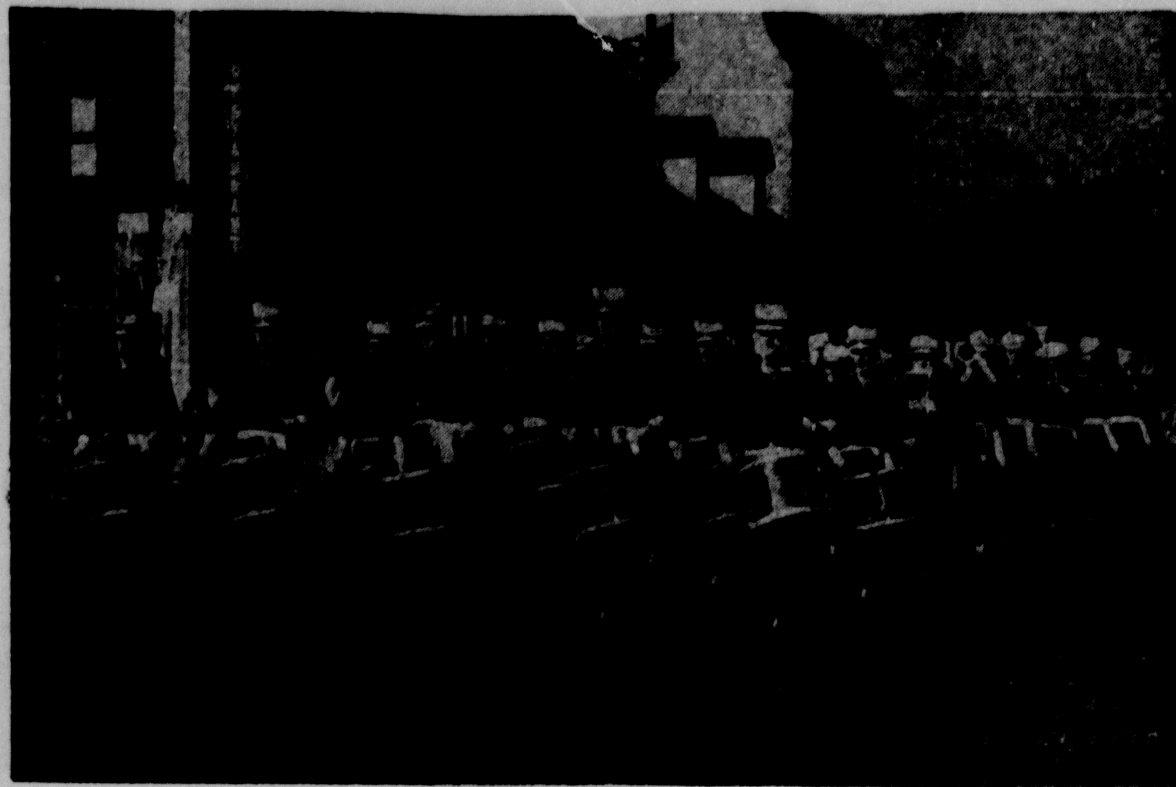

The program has been broadened to include boxes on mounted city routes as well as rural mail boxes. Rural mail boxes which are improperly erected or in unserviceable condition retard delivery of mail and expose it to the weather. Postmaster Norman B. Gregory said at the East Stroudsburg Post-office.

He said the mail box improvement program is intended to encourage rural patrons to provide suitable receptacles, erected and maintained for easy and safe accessibility, presenting a neat appearance and affording protection to the mail.

Gregory said cooperation of patrons is sought by the postmasters and rural carriers.

Dr. Brown Guest Speaker At Kiwanis

DR. ROBERT BROWN, retired superintendent of Stroudsburg schools, was guest speaker Wednesday at the weekly meeting of Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club. His talk centered on the Memorial Day theme.

Men now know enough to build a world or to destroy it, he said. They can push back the curtain of the universe and free men's minds of ignorance and superstition. They can strike off the shackles of disease and drugery and free men's bodies.

But, Dr. Brown said, there is something beyond this—the things of the spirit. The obstacles now are in the souls of men—hatred, folly and mistaken beliefs.

Patriotism

The speaker declared that patriotism is a thing of the heart—not the mind. The battle today is subtler than fighting with armies; it is a fight for possession of the souls of men.

"We're not looking for defeat but fighting the forces that seek to destroy us," he said. "I suppose it's only proper that something like Communism should rise up to challenge freedom but, to paraphrase Abraham Lincoln, it is not possible for the world to exist half free and half slave."

Dr. Brown was introduced by Dr. C. W. Dupee, program chairman.

Rev. Roger C. Stimson announced that the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church on June 7, under sponsorship of the Methodist Men of the area. The goal is 125 pints of blood.

Stroudsburg Man Draws $37.50 Fine

CHARGED with trespass and theft of three pine trees, Herman Glou of Stroudsburg maintained that he thought that they were growing on public property.

But Justice of the Peace Ruth Miller turned a deaf ear on his plea, and found him guilty of trespass, fining him $37.50.

In addition, Glou, who lives at 325 Clermont Ave., promised to pay the complainant, Mrs. Anna Serfass, Canadensis, $25 for the trees as restitution. Mrs. Serfass then dropped the theft charge.

Tract

Mrs. Serfass, who owns the tract known as Pocono Terrace, Route 611 in Stroud Township, called the trespass to the attention of Constable C. Walter Counterman, East Stroudsburg, who arrested Glou. Glou admitted taking the four-foot white pines on May 16.

Mrs. Pensyl, Stroudsburg, Dies At Home

MRS. ELLA Smith Pensyl, 65 of 356 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, died yesterday at about 3:30 a.m.

Dr. Charles H. Rushmore last night said that the cause of death would be decided finally today. Dr. Rushmore, the county coroner, said that Mrs. Pensyl apparently fell down a flight of stairs in the home.

The noise made by the woman's fall awakened the rest of her family, he said. Members of the family phoned General Hospital and a hospital ambulance was dispatched to the house.

At the hospital the woman was pronounced dead on arrival. Dr. Rushmore was called in on the case by hospital officials.

The woman was the wife of Burton Pensyl. Funeral arrangements will be announced today by Daniel Warner funeral home.

Shortway, Industrial Program Go Together

Gov. George M. Leader said the obvious thing when he described federal approval of the proposed 291-mile Keystone Shortway as a potential "economic shot-in-the-arm" for the many Pennsylvania communities affected by the 300-million-dollar project.

And he was right, we believe, in warning Republican legislative leaders to abandon plans to curtail the state's industrial development program because the Shortway "must go hand in hand" with efforts to develop industrial expansion in Pennsylvania.

"Industry wants to go where there are good roads," the Governor observed. "The Shortway project across Pennsylvania from Sharon to Stroudsburg is one of the outstanding highway undertakings in the nation. By providing a direct east-west interstate link (between Chicago and New York) it emphatically serves a vital function for Pennsylvania."

Communities located along the Shortway route have justifiable reason to expect the state to assist in this development through its Industrial Development Authority.

It would be a great mistake, then, for the legislative leaders in Harrisburg to deny the authority a modest request for five million dollars with which to carry on its work in the next biennium.

Although this authority has been operating less than ten months, it has proved its worth. It has made loans or loan commitments totaling $2,068,397 on 17 community industrial building projects which will provide jobs for hundreds of Pennsylvanians in "labor surplus" areas.

On the basis of applications approved or pending, the authority has only $1,727,621 in uncommitted funds. Clearly this is not nearly enough to finance another two years of operations.

The administration's request for five million dollars cannot be regarded as an outright grant of public funds. It is literally an investment in the future of Pennsylvania.

Any effort of the Republicans to fit this request into their admirable campaign to cut the budget would be the height of short-sightedness. The relatively trivial sums being loaned for the construction of industrial plants are one of the wisest investments the state could make.

We urge the General Assembly to give its overwhelming support to the Governor's industrial program by voting the five million dollars requested for the authority.

Traffic Safety Tied Closely With Eyesight

The suspicion has been growing for some time that physical examinations for drivers' licenses are not stiff enough. Law enforcement officers rather generally entertain this view.

Their contention has now won new support from the New York motor vehicle bureau.

It has been conducting studies to learn what link may exist between poor driving and poor vision. If its tests prove satisfactory they may soon be used as a requirement for licensing future applicants.

Twenty thousand persons tested in 1956 showed one in four had some eye condition which constituted a potential driving hazard. Stack this discovery up alongside the police opinion that 90 percent of all driving decisions are based on sight, and we get an idea of the importance of good vision.

Consequently, the importance of uniform and rigid standards of vision is abundantly evident.

Good Evening, Ladies!

Advancements Made In Electronics Hasn't Put Housecleaning On Scientific Basis

By Ken Duval
Spring housecleaning. I learn from observation because I try to participate just as little as possible, has changed scarcely at all over the years in spite of the advancements made in the science of electronics. No matter how many of these gadgets a husband saves to provide for his wife, she remains, fundamentally, a housewife and not an engineer.

After a week or so of unshirking you-know-what, a husband looks around the house and wonders what has happened. The place looks the same as it always did except, perhaps, he can no longer write his initials with his finger in the dust on the television set, but he knows this will also be back to normal in a short time.

Although he has pushed and shoved furniture around until his muscles ached, it is all back where it was at the start. The davenport didn't look better after all. And the two-ton easy chair that Grandpa loves so well will have to come back down from the attic because Grandpa is coming to stay a couple of weeks. Grandpa hasn't lifted anything heavy for 20 years, so you know who will have to bring the chair back down. This is a time of great strain on marital relations because the gentlest of wives becomes a kicking foreman: tote that barrel, lift that bale, get a little drunk and she threatens to sue a lawyer. There is no place to sit down because all the chairs are loaded. The beds are piled high with junk and the quality of the food falls off sharply. If a man holds out his arms to his wife, she'll hand him a pall and a sponge. Love, it seems, has been suspended and a man can only hope it is temporary.

The Junk Remains
The strangest part of all this is what happens to the things that were ticked for junking. After all, a lot of stuff can accumulate in ten years even in a medium sized house occupied by only two people. I once got a great idea about this and I still think it would work. I went through the house from top to bottom and in each room I made a pile of things that were worn out or had outlived their usefulness. A stack of ancient hats, shoes, dresses and other garments here, a stack of broken dishes, burned-out electrical appliances there. In this manner, I could determine how large a truck it would take to cart the stuff to the dump. Then I made a deal with a hauler.

But when the man showed up with a two-ton vehicle, he had only one small cart to take away. Since the price remained the same because he figured by the time consumed and the length of the trip rather than by weight and volume, I never tried this again.

The trouble was that after I'd made the piles, that certain party, whose name I am forbidden ever to mention, here went through them like some old harp-picking over the city dump. I thought for a moment that I had inadvertently included the family jewels. As it was, it turned out that practically everything I had selected for discard was really too good to throw away. It could be fixed, it might come back into style or, just as sure as we got rid of it we'd be needing it next week.

It was easy enough to stack up all this stuff, but I never again want to go through the agony of putting it back where I found it. How could I remember where that old toaster with which we started housekeeping and which, as a consequence, is a precious thing even if it won't toast any more, was cached when I went to work? And where did I dig up that suit I was married in and which now has such sentimental value because one of the kids would treasure it after I'm gone? And that milk-glass creamer Aunt Hattie gave us, which would some day be a priceless antique or suddenly become very smart as a martini pitcher?

The trouble with me, I'm told, is that I'm profligate and never give solemn thought to the future.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

Americans are getting to feel uncomfortable and unhappy if DRY and with no water in either ear. The outdoor bathing-pool craze has brought out the quantity production swim and pre-packaged ever-ready, high dive.

The two-car garage and swimming pool industries are developing faster than any other industries of the day. "Everybody off dry land at once!" "So deep!" and "Open the throttle wide!" are the topmost slogans of 1957.

This, taken with the amazing rush by Americans into boating, is putting the country afloat. More men, women and children are in, on or under water than in any country on earth. If you ring somebody up and get no answer you know the entire family is either swimming, floating or speed-boating.

The boat, outdoor motor and swimming pool industries are developing faster than any other industries of the day. "Everybody off dry land at once!" "So deep!" and "Open the throttle wide!" are the topmost slogans of 1957.

For generations the American was a water-fearing personality. Relatively few people went swimming or boating. "Don't go near the water" was family Rule No. 1. If the old folks found that Junior had been up to his knees in water or out for a few minutes in a rowboat it was a matter for disciplinary action. There were parents who feared their kids might drown if they looked too long at marine paintings.

Today it is a rare child who hasn't learned all the swim strokes within a year of kindergarten age. In the typical American family of today mom can eat a banana under water, pop can overhaul any marine engine and the children are all dancing on one foot to get the salt water out of their ears.

The backyard pool now comes in all sizes, colors and patterns, conveniently wrapped and swiftly delivered and assembled. We now have the do-it-yourself swimming hole.

The door-to-door bathing pool salesman is crowding out the brush salesman. The day of the new model pool each season in gayer styles and colors is near. (Excuse us, please, while we run down to the salesroom and trade in our 1956 backyard swimming tank for a 1957 model. And we hope the water pipes and ladders won't be listed as extras.)

Her Husband Opposed Outside Work For Her

By Anne Heywood

Back in the days when women had no rights at all, they carried diplomacy to the point where it was practically hypocrisy. The need to placate The Master was so great that all kinds of tactful lies were told.

Other Extreme

But now that we're more or less independent, I think a lot of us are going to the other extreme. Frankness can be carried to the point where it's senseless cruelty—and very unattractive to boot.

That's how it is with a girl I know, whom I'll call Esther. Esther is a forthright girl. To her, everything is either black or white. She is married to a wonderful man, whom she loves dearly—but sometimes you'd never know it!

Esther wants to go back to work, but her husband doesn't want her to. His reasons are silly, some of them, and emotional, but he's got a right to his reasons, as I see it. However, Esther makes no bones about telling him how silly he is.

"He claims the neighbors will talk," she sputtered. "I told him not to flatter himself—they don't find him that fascinating. Anyway, half the women on the block have jobs. But he says no wife of his is going to work. I wonder what he's trying to prove!"

Doesn't Take Advice
Esther pretends to ask my advice. However, I sometimes wonder why, since she's not an advice-taking type.

The trouble is that, in the beginning, Tom only mildly objected to her working. But now, after all the screaming and yelling, it's a matter of pride with him and he feels violently about it. The violence is really all of Esther's own doing.

With Esther and Tom, I'm afraid it's almost hopeless. But often women who have objections from the husband about working, should bear these things in mind:

First, remember that there is still a strong streak in most men of wanting to be the breadwinner, and the only one. It's sensitive territory, so do move gently.

On a Trial Basis

Second, suggest that you do it on a three-month trial basis, with the understanding that if things fall apart, as he fears they will, you'll stop.

Third, remember that he does have terrible financial pressures and worries, and stress the fact that a second paycheck, if only a small one, is some kind of net under you both.

Fourth, get a job in a field that interests you, so you'll have a plus motive instead of a minus motive. You'll be leaving the home for a job you love, instead of leaving the home because the home is a bore!

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

Some visitors down in Dixie indulged in an escorted tour of historic battlefields. The driver-guide was eloquent: "Here's whar a passel of Alabama boys knocked stuffin's outa ten thousand Yanks," or "Three of New Yo'k's best regiments got licked heyah," or "This is whar an Atlanta batt'ry captured a Yankee brigade," etc., etc.

A Boston lady grew more and more indignant as the tour progressed, finally interrupted. "Didn't we Yankees win one battle around here?"

"No, ma'am," was the answer. "Not while I'm drivin' this bus they didn't!"

A long string of drivers was waiting for the green light when suddenly a little foreign runabout started hippity-hopping all over the place. A cop ran up to holler, "What the — do you think you're doing?"

"Nothing, officer," the embarrassed occupant assured him. "I've just got the hiccups."

Robert S. Allen Reports

Nixon, Knowland Agreed On Future Political Plans

Washington, May 30 — Senator William Knowland is throwing politics into a new tizzy over his long-conjectured intentions.

Cause of this excited backstage buzzing is a spectacular report from a high Republican source on close terms with all the individuals involved. Following is what this GOP authority is relating:

Vice President Nixon and Knowland "have had a meeting of minds" on their political plans. They have gotten together on a mutually satisfactory understanding.

Under it, Knowland will run for Governor of California in 1958. Simultaneously, he will announce that he will support Nixon for President in 1960. Knowland will give categorical assurances that, if elected, he will serve out the full four-year gubernatorial term and will not seek the White House before then.

Nixon will reciprocate by doing his utmost to win the governorship for Knowland. Foremost among these efforts will be to prevail on Governor Goodwin Knight to seek the Senate seat which Knowland is voluntarily vacating.

This crucial phase of the reputed Nixon-Knowland agreement is already vigorously under way. Knight has declared his determination to seek re-election, "his mind will be changed" and, in the end, he will run for the Senate.

Also claimed by this knowledgeable source is that President Eisenhower is fully apprised of these plans and heartily approves of them.

They contain some obvious uncertainties and risks. For example: Should Knight refuse to "change his mind" and persist in running for governor again, a bitter primary fight with Knowland would be inevitable. What effect that would have on the California GOP is conjectural. Some party chiefs think it would do a lot of good; others are fearful of the consequences.

It is apparent these latter are in the majority as all indications point to strenuous efforts being made to avert a potentially disruptive Republican battle.

Similarly, Nixon will be "riding" on the state ticket next year. He has a tremendous stake in its fate. Both as a Californian and as his party's leading campaigner, Nixon will be in the forefront of this particular campaign. An upset could be very distressing to his 1960 presidential aspirations.

That's why the politicians are so agog over this reported Nixon-Knowland "meeting of minds."

Note: Senator Knowland is leaving his colleagues in no doubt about one matter: He has no intention of stepping out as

Senate GOP Leader until his term expires in January 1959. He made this very clear to Senators Styles Bridges, N. H., chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, and Everett Dirksen, Ill., party Whip. They asked him about it, and Knowland replied, "I propose to continue as Floor Leader as long as I am here."

Politics — Robert McKinney, Santa Fe, N. M., publisher and Eisenhower Democrat, is credited with having the inside track for appointment to the Atomic Energy Commission. He is on good terms with both Atomic Chairman Lewis Strauss and Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N. M.), vice chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, a leading critic of Strauss. Several years ago, Anderson made McKinney head of a special advisory committee that conducted an exhaustive study on the peaceful uses of atomic energy. . . . George Allen, neighbor and golf companion of President Eisenhower, is booming a startling 1960 GOP presidential candidate. Allen, one a Mississippi election. But according to this pi Democrat, is telling friends he would like to see Senator Frank Lausche (D., O.) "succeed like."

Allen points out that Lausche got a lot of Republican votes in his election campaigns. . . . Former President Truman will be the main speaker at a big Democratic rally in Milwaukee on June 25. State Chairman Philo Nash is claiming credit for persuading Truman to come. Nash is trying to get Truman's help to line up party leaders to back him for senator, but without success. Truman told Nash, "I'm 100 percent for a Democrat in place of Joe McCarthy, but I'm not telling Wisconsin Democrats whom to nominate." . . . Former Senator Harry Cain (R., Wash.), who got in dutch with the White House and as a result failed to obtain a second term on the Subversive Control Board, has become quite friendly with Vice President Nixon. Cain is telling friends he has had a number of cordial talks with Nixon, and that the latter has sought Cain's views on politics and other subjects. . . . Democratic congressional leaders are urging Representative Walter Baring, Nev., to seek the party's nomination to run for the seat of Senator George Malone (R., Nev.). Baring is highly regarded by the Democratic chiefs, and they strongly favor him as the party's standard-bearer in the drive to win this Republican senatorial place.

4 OUT OF 5 HOMES SUFFER FROM LOW HOUSEPOWER

Here's the reason: Today's average home uses 3 times as much electricity as it did 15 years ago . . . yet there has been no wiring added to carry that extra electricity! When you have low HOUSEPOWER your electric appliances labor, don't work efficiently.

HERE ARE 4 SYMPTOMS OF LOW HOUSEPOWER

1. Your lights dim when your refrigerator goes on.
2. Your TV picture shrinks when your coffee maker starts.
3. You have to replace blown fuses from time to time.
4. You have one or more "octopus outlets."

A HOUSEPOWER RATING

will show you just how efficient your home's electrical system is. When an electrical contractor makes a HOUSEPOWER Rating on your home, its electric circuits are examined. Then a HOUSEPOWER Rating Sheet is completed. All of the electrical appliances your wiring can handle are listed.

YOUR HOUSEPOWER RATING

sheet will also show you exactly what wonderful electrical appliances you can operate when you have full HOUSEPOWER. And you'll learn what needs to be done to give your home full HOUSEPOWER. You'll find out how quickly, neatly and economically extra wiring can be added to your home.

Father DeLuca To Celebrate Anniversary Mass

By Leonard Randolph

THOUSANDS of Americans and Canadians of Italian descent have flocked to masses in Roman Catholic churches these past 25 years to hear a stocky, soft-spoken East Stroudsburg man who speaks their native tongue.

He is Rev. Silvio DeLuca. This Sunday, Father Silvio will "come home" to celebrate the 25th year of his ordination as a priest. He will officiate at a special Mass of Thanksgiving at 11 a. m. in St. Matthew's.

Prominent among the audience will be Italian-Americans of Monroe County whose confessions the mild-mannered priest will hear on Saturday, in their own language.

Assisting in Sunday's special mass will be Magr. Salvatore Florey of St. Lucy's Church, Scranton, who will be deacon; Rev. Leopold Snyder, sub-deacon; and Rev. Harold G. Durkin, pastor of St. Matthew's who will be the arch-priest.

All parishioners have been invited to attend the mass and the reception which will be held in the parochial school auditorium from 3:30 to 7 p. m. There will also be a benediction service at 7:30 p. m. at St. Matthew's with Fr. Silvio again officiating.

In the congregation Sunday morning will be the priest's mother, Mrs. Maria DeLuca, now 80; his brother, Anthony, operator of a shoe shop and his sister, Mrs. George Pabst, all of East Stroudsburg. Other brothers and sisters who live outside the county are also preparing to attend. Only one of the other seven—a brother who lives in Phoenix, Arizona—will be unable to come.

Fr. Silvio has "many reasons to be happy, coming back." For him, he is happy, coming back. For him, with good memories and "I'm still proud of them. I never realized their full beauty until I began to travel. Then I found out I had something to brag about. I'd say I was from Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg and they'd say: That's right in the Poconos."

Silvio DeLuca came to The Stroudsburgs in 1911 from Roseto, where devotion to the Passion of Christ's last days on earth.

When Fr. Leopold finished his stay during 40-hour devotions in East Stroudsburg, Silvio's mind was decided. With the help of Fr. Butler, then pastor of St. Matthew's and of Fr. Leopold, Silvio DeLuca entered seminary in Dunkirk, N. Y. in September of 1922.

He finished his training and went to Pittsburgh as a novice. He was ordained in May, 1923 at St. Michael's Passionist Monastery in Union City, N. J. Within nine months he had started on what seems to be his chosen life work: Conducting "missions" in both English and Italian. The work, so far, has taken him through all of the Eastern U. S. states and much of Canada where large population centers are made up, at least in part, of older Italian people from the poorer sections of Italy who had never been able to learn English. Fr. Silvio's individual light as a priest began to shine more clearly and distinctly. Mission work is designed to help men and women return to the basic ideals and theories of their faith.

"The work I do is especially suited to help people review their religion," Fr. Silvio says. "In mission work you can concentrate on the foundation of faith—the reality of God, the preciousness of the human soul, the reality of life after death, the necessity of the commandments for true order and happiness in human life. More than anything else: That the love of God means giving Him time, attention and service first and only in this way can we give regulated time, attention and true service to our neighbors."

To further Passionist thought and ideals, Fr. Silvio trained himself to use the medium of radio. He has given at least 60 broadcasts over Station WFCB in Dunkirk in the two languages he speaks fluently and has done a large amount of radio work in Canada.

Returning now to celebrate his silver jubilee as a priest, Fr. Silvio has arrived at his own personal philosophy in human relations as well as a fervent interpretation of the Passionist's thoughts. On Sunday, he said, he will be saying a mass with true gratitude in his heart: For all his life has given him, for God's enormous blessings, for the careful planning which has gone into the celebration by local priests, Fr. Durkin, Rev. Francis Barrett and Rev. John Esseff and the nuns in the local parish school.

"Because of the nature of the work I do, dealing with so many varied people, I've always held an optimistic view of life and of people," he says. "In my work, I see the best in them."

"I've been in all the major cities in the East and it's the same no matter where I go. Men are so often criticized and condemned, yet when you meet them and they open up and let you inside their hearts and minds, you are able to see the aspirations, the desires, even the efforts that other people never suspect are there."

"It is a great thing to find goodness in men in whom it is not suspected. It has made my life and my work cheerful and happy," the priest says.

Be Careful Of Postage On Cards

TOBYHANNA— "Make certain that the postage fits the postcard," warns Postmaster P. D. Frankensfield.

Warning that post-cards with appendages may not, necessarily be sent through the mails for only two cents, the postmaster indicated that it would be wise for the sender to check the weight of the intended missile prior to its being sent.

Example

For instance, a card with an attached written note must be sent for three cents. Secondly, if the appendage to the card weighs more than two ounces, an extra penny must be paid for every ounce or fraction thereof.

If not? Well, they are held in the post office, and a bill for the postage due will be sent to the sender, if possible, or the addressee, if it is not forthcoming, it will be destroyed.

And the recipient will never receive it.

Two Brownie Troops Visit Roadside America

Brownies of Troops 17 and 28 chartered a bus to Roadside America on Saturday, May 25. On the way down they stopped at the Allentown Airport. They were taken on a tour through the Weather Bureau and shown the different instruments used to determine the weather. A large airplane took off for Montreal while they were there and then a Navy helicopter put on a very good show-off performance for the benefit of the Brownies.

On arrival at Roadside America they enjoyed a picnic lunch and a trip around the Zoo before entering the Miniature Village Display. Brownies sure made buttons pop for their leaders. Not one skinned knee nor any car sickness.

The Brownies and leaders of Troop 28 who made the trip were: Linda Bishop, Cynthia Gallagher, Linda Gordon, Linda Green, Judith Hoffman, Elaine Kauffman, Regina Kimball, Jill Martin, Jan Miller, Judy Miller, Susan Miller, Georgiana Smith, Leigh Smith, Patricia Triebke, Diane Uhl, Mrs. Harold Kimball, Mrs. Fred Miller, Mrs. Isaac Martin and Mrs. Clarence Triebke.

Those from Troop 17 were Bettie Blair, Claire Curtis, Janet Heller, Marilyn Marsh, Linda Melvin, Marcia Meyers, Susan Morris, Charlotte Raitt, Sally Rushmore, Linda Sebring, Phyllis Smith, Sharon Smith, Cathy Snover, Julie Snover, Elsie Van Campen, Revilleann Van Gorden, Barbara Weisenfue, Mrs. Jay Snover, Mrs. Robert Sebring, Mrs. Donald Heller and Mrs. LeRoy Morris.

—By Bobby Westbrook

Just Between Us

Caught between the upper and nether millstones of unpacking what looks to be a full year's supply of dirty clothes my son brought home from college and packing my own clothes for a vacation trip, there was very little holiday yesterday for me.

Which is why it was so pleasant to have so many Girl Scout stories about doing the kind of things you ought to do on a holiday: trips and cookouts and getting medals for proficiency in a great many things.

If there is a badge in "Getting Ready to Travel", I should take the course. Physically, of course, there is always the problem of getting and keeping enough clothes clean for the trip and still wearing something for work and faring abroad.

Mentally, however, it's even more disturbing. A rut may not have much of a view but you roll along in it without too much steering. Right at this moment, if I didn't have a hard and fast commitment to meet five college classmates at a definite time and place, I'd back out and stay home.

There's Sue Driebe's wedding this weekend, the Bitterman wedding the following weekend; The first Glen Brook Ladies tournament on Thursday; and lots of luncheons which I'm going to miss.

Besides after a winter of letters to the children about how much I miss them, this running off the minute they get home doesn't seem very logical. Who's going to referee the fights about the car, who's going to boss them around?

And it's no use to tell me that the social page will get along very well without me and so will the household. That's what I'm afraid of. Doesn't take much to dispel the myth of the indispensable woman I've been at such pains to build up.

Home From College

Peter Westbrook has arrived home from Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., and is spending the summer with his mother, Mrs. Horace Westbrook, East Stroudsburg.

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

NO SMEAR, NO SMUDGE. A lovely writes: "My eyes look best with mascara. But it is a problem to me. It always smudges, and also dries my lashes to the breaking point. Please, have you any solution?"

Yes, just follow these suggestions: 1. Before applying mascara, blot well around eyes with cleansing tissue. 2. Use waterproof mascara. For application of cake types, water-dampen brush as sparingly as possible. Apply creams with dry brush. 3. Unless extra blond, avoid lower lashes. 4. Let applications dry thoroughly then whisk lashes with clean, dry brush. 5. Once made-up, avoid touching lashes and wearing tightly drawn veils. 6. Ward off breakage by brushing eyelash cream on mascara-free lashes at bedtime.

Local DAR Tours Historic Sites Of Revolution

Jacob Stroud Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, closed their year's activities with a pilgrimage to Morristown, N. J. Mrs. Harold Pine and Mrs. Howard Flagler Jr., provided transportation.

The group was met at Washington's Headquarters, originally, the Ford Mansion, by Mrs. B. E. Burns of the Morristown Chapter, DAR, and with the curator conducted them on a tour of the home and the museum at the rear. The Ford Mansion is a Georgian home used by Gen. Washington and his official family during the winter of 1779-80.

Tea and coffee were served at the Schuyler-Hamilton House owned by the Morristown DAR. The house was the one in which Alexander Hamilton courted Betsy Schuyler while he was serving as one of Washington's secretaries. The DAR has restored the house to its pre-Revolutionary state. Local members took box lunches which they ate at the chapter house.

Later they toured the McCulloch House, built by the architect of the Morris Canal. Now in the process of restoration it is not yet open to the general public. It is owned by Former Mayor Todd, of Morristown, who has collected period furniture, paintings, crystal chandeliers and valuable china which is housed there.

The group also visited the Theodore Vail home, the house from which the first telegraph message was sent, the Jockey Hollow area where Washington's troops camped and where the Continental Army hospital hut, has been reconstructed. Along the road through the Hollow, they saw the massive Bettin Oak under which Capt. Adam Bettin, who was killed in the mutiny of the Pennsylvania Line, is buried. In the Hollow is also the Wick House, built in 1750 and used as military quarters by Maj. Gen. Arthur St. Clair. The farmhouse has been restored to recreate the

Wall, Brown Defeat Palmer, Cuttle In Manor Golf Match

Art Fires Five-Under 68; Arnold Racks Up Par 73

POCONO MANOR—Par-smashing Art Wall Jr. and steady "Brud" Brown teamed up here yesterday and defeated former U. S. Amateur Champion Arnold Palmer and veteran Jack Cuttle 7-up in an 18-hole benefit match for the Pennsylvania Heart Fund and Cancer Society.

Wall, backed by an eagle, six birdies and a beautiful 35-foot putt on the 9th hole, shot a five-under 69 to take individual honors for the day. The Manor's traveling pro ago when he bogied the second and third holes and No. 16, missed tying the course record of 66 set by Cuttle 15 years

Brown, eight-times Pocono Manor Club champion, came in with a 75 to give him and Wall an aggregate total of 143. Palmer, one of the brightest young pros on the PGA trail, playing the Manor course for the first time, had trouble with the back nine but still managed to hit par — 73. Cuttle, the Manor's host pro, also had his troubles on the last nine and posted a 78 for a total of 151 for the losers.

Despite two bogies on the first three holes, it was Wall who blasted and putted the best to the delight of the 500 following gallery. The Duke University graduate who is a native of Honesdale, Pa., trailed Palmer on drives by five to 20 yards a hole, but on his iron shots he more than offset the Latrobe, Pa., blaster's tee edge.

Wall was four-under on the front nine and one-under on the back. Palmer went out in great style, ripping a two-under 34. But three bogies on the final nine, plus his two on the front proved his downfall.

Where Wall's putting was superb, Palmer was just the opposite, although at times, he demonstrated pin-point touch.

Brown, threading the fairways like a needle, actually found his game on the back nine after going three over on the front. The Trenton, N. J. amateur, came home in 36, one-under to knot Wall for back honors.

Cuttle, parred the first eight holes but ran into trouble from the ninth on. The head pro of the Manor had putting troubles on the ninth, 10th, 13th, which forced him off his usual steady game.

'Dean' Hanks Finishes 1st In Indianapolis 500-Miler

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30 (AP)—Sam Hanks, the lean "dean" of race drivers, finally won his first Indianapolis 500-mile auto race in 12 tries today, throttling his yellow car to a record-smashing triumph.

The 42-year-old Hanks, from Pacific Palisades, Calif., gunned his lightweight Belong special, which has its engine lying on its side, at a 136.601 mile per hour average over the 200 laps.

The 6-foot, 160-pound driver, who last year finished second to Pat Flaherty, cracked the 1954 record of 130.840 m.p.h. by the late Bill Vukovich.

Hanks finished about 20 seconds ahead of 28-year-old Jim Rathmann of Miami, who came clear up from the last row in the 11-row starting lineup to challenge Hanks the entire second half of the thrilling race. Jimmy Bryan from Phoenix, Ariz., was third.

Fourth among the 17 surviving cars of the original field of 33 was the Novi special of 44-year-old Paul Russo, Canoga Park, Calif., while fifth went to Andy Linden of Indianapolis.

The ideal weather, the customary whopping crowd of more than 150,000 saw the yellow caution light flash on four times to signal mishaps on the track.

One Casualty

In an except one instance, the wrecked driver was able to walk away from his car. The one casualty was Mike Magill, 37, Haddonfield, N. J., who suffered back injuries when he hit a retaining wall and was struck from behind by Al Herman, 39, Allentown, Pa. Both were forced out of the race.

Hanks won't know how much he won until tomorrow night's victory dinner. He knows he won $21,150 for leading 141 laps at $150 a crack.

Lone Yank In Running In England

FORMBY, England, May 30 (AP)

—Leslie McClue, a gallant Scot with nine stitches in his split ear, fought in vain to stave off defeat today but yielded to Harold Ridgeley, the last American left in the British Amateur Golf championship by a whopping 7 and 5 margin.

Ridgeley, of the U. S. Air Force, a toughened master sergeant, softly gave his wounded opponent every consideration in winning their quarter-final match. But he didn't let up in his shooting and stayed out in front all day long.

On Nerve

McClue, his right ear bandaged, played purely on nerve today after walking into a driver swung by Dale Morey of Indianapolis during their fifth round match yesterday. He had nine stitches taken in the gash at a hospital last night but refused an anesthetic because he thought it might make him groggy for today's match.

Deadline Set For Entries

FORREST FABEL, commissioner of softball in Monroe County, announced last night that Saturday at 6 p. m. is the deadline for entries in the Monroe County Softball Tournament.

Fabel said that all fees must be in the hands of Monroe County League president Joe Whalen tomorrow at 6 p. m. He also said that team rosters must be filed at that time.

Early Training Big Help In Dr. Price's Medical Work

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second in a series of articles to be written by Leonard Randolph on the life of Dr. Nina Price. The series will appear periodically during the next week.

By Leonard Randolph
WHEN NINA CASE entered the medical profession she was already a dedicated woman.

Much of this dedication came from the early training she had been given by her mother and father and to her understanding of the role her Grandmother Helms had played in saving one community from disease and death.

In 1906 medicine was still struggling to remove itself from the mental straitjackets of conformity. New methods of treatment were often met with blind prejudice and hard-headed resistance. Some of those methods were quackery; others have gone on to become the salvation of millions of human beings.

One of the biggest taboos in the profession at that time—just as in other fields—was against the subtle infiltration of women into the ranks. To most doctors a woman was a sometime thing, useful around the office in handling wet babies, sterilizing a few instruments, doing general hard work and placating obnoxious patients. There was an ironclad, although unwritten, "law" somewhere near the mid-section of the Hippocratic oath.

Frowns

Male doctors not only frowned upon women doctors—they glowered at them with stern and stereotyped professional disdain. It was like that at Northwestern University's school of medicine. Nina Case didn't mind the hard looks and the sneers, but she resented the fact that men as a ruling clique could prevent women from having any vestige of practical experience in the profession they had chosen.

At Woman's Medical College, Philadelphia, things were, of course, much different. Nina found herself among women who had a common bond with her: They were determined they had something to offer to humanity through medicine. Nina Case's main interest lay in the field of obstetrics. Her younger sister, Dorothy, joined her at Woman's Medical (also transferred from Northwestern) in 1907. Dorothy (as Dorothy Case-Bleichschmidt) later went on to become a foremost American cancer research surgeon in Philadelphia where a clinic now bears her name. She, too, is still in medicine.

Following her graduation from the college, Nina interned for two years at Melrose Sanitarium, Boston. It was a fine institution, but it had one serious shortcoming: the sanitarium did not take maternity cases, the field in which Nina's interest was most strong.

It was at this point that she again showed the dauntless zeal which never let her be deterred from her goal as a physician. Merchants in Boston suddenly found themselves confronted by a short, modestly-dressed girl whose stature and gentle smile were poor preparation for the dogged will which lay behind them.

Nina asked the businessmen to chip in for what eventually became an obstetrical clinic. It was run in conjunction with the Florence Crittenton Home in Boston, and as the businessmen would have put it, business was very good. Between March 1 and Sept. 1 in the year it opened, Dr. Nina Case delivered 57 babies. It was an average of slightly more than two babies for each week of the clinic's opening operations. Dr. Nina has maintained that average faithfully ever since.

Experienced

In 1912, more experienced and adventurous than ever, Nina arrived in Monroe County to set up a sanitarium in Mount Pocono. A year later, the building was destroyed by fire and all of its records went with it—including personal records such as family history, birth dates and the like.

A few days later the office was reopened in Stroudsburg. And it is at this point that Monroe County's profit from the slight, wispy-haired female doctor begins to become obvious.

Dr. Nina approached medicine from a practical standpoint. One former patient puts it this way: "Seeing her is just like going home for a holiday." Nina was more than a professional doctor. She became, with startling suddenness, a friend, confidant and basic psychologist to most of the people who came "just for pills."

Voluntarily she began to teach mothers practical home remedies for mild illnesses such as toothaches, light head colds. She taught clinics for young married women expecting babies, stressing prenatal care and the early care of the child. She attempted to drive home a knowledge of the early symptoms of childhood diseases to prevent their spread within the community.

Gradually, as her fame spread within the county, Dr. Nina became the symbol in the minds of countless men and women (including some doctors) of the old-fashioned doctor who was never too busy or tired to travel a dozen miles in bad weather to see a sick man or deliver a child.

Although less well-known, her care and treatment of unmarried mothers has brought her a deathless, grateful gratitude from them which is unabashed and deeply touching. One woman recently told me: "You can't have any idea what Dr. Price has given me. And the beautiful part of it is that neither does she."

Fame

Dr. Nina's fame is about equally split between the serious, sincere love shown by her patients and the light, bantering, openly affectionate humor of some of her colleagues or other residents who have known her a long time.

Much of the humor turns on Nina's strongest human quality: her determined attitude toward her job. Frank LaBar, General Hospital board chairman, told the audience at last week's testimonial to Dr. Price that "she only bought a car, one of those new-fangled contraptions, after she found out that a horse and buggy couldn't get her up in the mountains fast enough. She had it four years, I'm told, before she learned how to back it up. Until then she just turned around in a circle until

Home Filing Situation May Be Solved By Planning

THE FILING OF PAPERS and reference material usually presents a puzzling problem to the householder. One man who does at home a great deal of his professional work, which involves the filing of letters, papers and drawings, recently solved the problem by buying two second-hand golden oak commercial filing cases and removing the metal hardware.

Instead, strong but attractive wooden knobs were used as drawer pulls. Then, placing the files parallel with the wall—on either side of the double door leading from his study to the living room—he had a carpenter build book-cases on the sides.

Enameled to match the woodwork, the filing cabinets now disappear almost completely into the background of the room.

Decorations Big Help To Small Rooms

SMALL bedrooms, characteristic of the small homes being built today, can be given an air of greater spaciousness by following a few suggestions for planning the decorative scheme.

Paint the walls and woodwork the same light shade and finish. Or if papering the walls, select a wallpaper with a small pattern and paint the woodwork the background color of the paper.

Cover the floor with a solid color wall-to-wall carpeting.

Select only the pieces of furniture essential to comfort and convenience, keeping in mind that simple design and light wood finishes will make the room look larger.

Do not clutter the room with too much pattern. Enough can be brought into the scheme with the draperies, lamps, pictures or other decorative accessories.

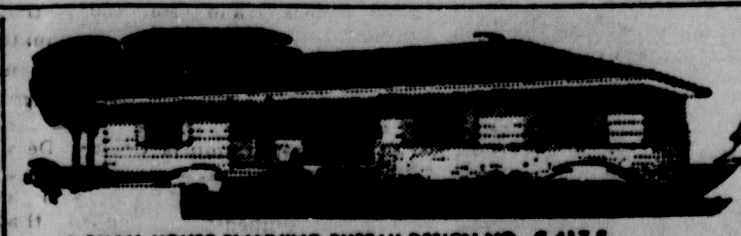

Whitewash May Injure Trees

A COMMON custom in many sections is to whitewash tree trunks both for ornamental reasons and as a fancied protection against insect damage.

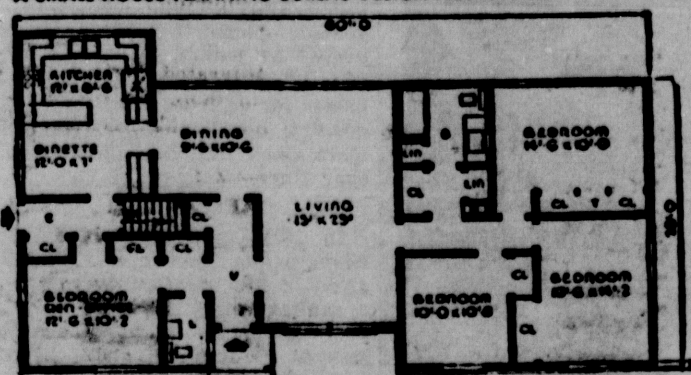

The fact is that continued whitewashing over a prolonged period may result in tree injury. Frequently, whitewash cuts off the supply of air to the bark, which needs to "breathe" much in the manner of leaves.

Make Narrow Windows Wide

TO GAIN more light from a small window and to step up its importance, or to make a narrow window appear wider, use swinging sash "brackets" which hold the curtains well to the side of the window frame, allowing as much of the glass to show as you like. Use removable curtain hooks to hang draperies on the rods.

New Timing Devices Take Guesswork Out Of Cooking

NEW TIMING DEVICES that take all of the guesswork out of surface unit cooking are one of the major innovations being acclaimed by homemakers on the new 1967 electric ranges featured by local appliance dealers. Controlled for both time and temperature, these new electric ranges are "proof of the pudding" that "Nothing Measures Up to Electric Cooking."

These new automatic controls equip the electric range to bake, french fry, broil, barbecue, boil, stew, grill and roast all types of food to "chef-perfection"; turn themselves off and signal to indicate that dinner is ready. Balanced heat at any selected temperature for any cooking process is now at the fingertips of any homemaker. Since this flexible unit is both time and temperature controlled, no overheating, burning or scorching can occur while the homemaker is out of the room performing other duties.

Thermostatically equipped for self-regulation, these remarkable sensing devices turn any pan unit into an automatic cooker. This latest advance in the manufacture of electric ranges, plus numerous other automatic controls and ultra-modern fashion styling in a variety of pastel colors, has made the 1967 range the most exciting produced in many years and is finding ready acceptance as an important contributor to the ease of meal preparation.

Coming in for its share of attention this year is the plug-in meat thermometer that only electric cooking can offer. One manufacturer has equipped the new model range with an electric music box that plays "Tenderly" when the roast thermometer signals that the meat has reached desired doneness. Another has added a new "dinner ready" buzzer, while others use a glowing colored signal light or a musical chime.

Steaks now are broiled to perfection on one of the new vertical broilers. Hamburgers, frankfurters and other meats can be prepared in the same marvelous broiler which cooks all sides of meat at the same time without turning. The vertical broiler not only saves time but it also assures better broiling results by applying even electric heat at just the right temperature, whether rare, medium or well-done meats are desired. And for the small family a dual purpose broiler unit designed to cook small portions with only its inner coil operating is available.

Ovens, too, have new features. Insertion of a "divider" in the oven, plus top and bottom heating elements, permits the simultaneous cooking or baking of different foods at different temperatures. There are elevator ovens which are the last word in convenience. Just press a button and the entire oven moves up to any position desired for "loading" or removing foods. Press another button and the oven returns to cabinet-top level where its own top can be used as additional working space.

In designing new features for the 1967 models, electric range manufacturers did not overlook speed of operation. There are new units that are faster than ever before—proved faster than any other type of range.

All of the new ranges, which embrace these and many other wonderful features that save time and work for the homemaker, are being featured now by local dealers who are offering their customers a variety of special deals.

Never before have electric ranges offered so many outstanding conveniences, and never before has there been a better time to buy than now—especially since "Nothing Measures Up to Electric Cooking."

Carpet Protection

USE GLASS or wood cups under the legs of heavy pieces of furniture to prevent the legs from denting carpets.

Patching Roofs Often Leads To Damage

THE ACT of patching a roof often results in more leaks than existed before repair work was started. This is one of the little understood reasons for completely recovering a weatherbeaten roof instead of patching it.

Accidental splitting or puncturing of old, worn roofing is difficult to avoid when the roof is used as a work platform. The possibility of damage is great because the roof has been weakened by years of service.

Patching a leak is recommended only when the roof is relatively new and the damage is localized—a leak caused by a falling tree branch, for example. Otherwise, patching may be ineffective, because

Cut Flowers At Right Time

THE HOME gardener is missing out if he fails to grow a few everlasting for cutting and drying. The flowers must be cut at the right time, which is just before they open or when the buds are fairly well developed. After cutting, the stems are tied in bundles and hung upside down in a room at home, allowing them to dry slowly in the shade.

A few kinds include the Immortelle with white, purple, and rose flowers; Globe Amaranth, which resembles clover with straw-like heads of yellow, white and red, and the common strawflower, large and with shades of red and yellow.

cause roofing wears evenly and the first leak indicates that others will develop soon.

Controls Suggested For Raspberry Worm, Borer

WE'VE BEEN asked for information on spraying for the raspberry fruit worm. This is the larva or "worm" you see at picking time, and it's found inside the berry. The adults eat holes in the foliage and may seriously injure the developed blossom buds by feeding on the floral parts. Wormy fruit is unfit for the market, and it usually drops before harvest time.

Control: Spray your bushes using Rotenone, DDT or lead arsenate. For the home gardener, a 1 percent rotenone dust or a 5% DDT dust or spray are generally used. These should be applied when the first blossoms buds appear and should be repeated just before the blossom buds open. Do not spray when the blossoms are out, as you'll kill the bees. Special effort should be made to cover all leaf surfaces and to penetrate the blossom clusters with the spray or dust material.

DDT will also knock out the tarnished plant bug, a sucking pest. Sprays should be applied before bloom only, as you don't want to kill pollinating bees or leave a dangerous residue on the fruits.

Question Box

M. S. of Stroudsburg: "When we purchased our home we also got quantities of a weed known as bamboo. This pest is all around the foundation of the house and it crowds out tulips, daffodils and anything that grows. Now it's spreading to the lawn area and even weedkillers won't touch it. Is there anything we can do besides moving away from it?"

Your weed is the so-called Mexican Bamboo (Polygonum cuspidatum) which is neither Mexican nor a bamboo. This is a vigorous, hardy perennial with smallish white flowers in long clusters. Bamboo is a handsome, quick growing plant used as a screen. Without rigid control, the

Association Plans For Conference

BANGOR — Plans to attend the session of the School Committee of the Bangor Area Joint School System on Wednesday, June 5 were made at the regular meeting of the Bangor Area Branch of the Pennsylvania State Education Assn., when that organization met on Tuesday afternoon at the high school with Millard Gleim, president, in charge.

In other business the teachers elected the following officers for next year: Miss Florence Gagliano, president; Dr. Anson Hamm, vice president; Miss Kathryn Verona, recording secretary; Granville R. Evans, corresponding secretary and Louis Guida, treasurer. Routine reports were heard from Earl Rader and Charles Sandwick, Jr., secretary and the report on the budget for the 1957-58 school year was rendered by Earl Lutz, chairman of the budget committee.

A report on pending legislation now being considered in Harrisburg by the State Legislature was given by Dr. Hamm and Millard Gleim, a member of the State Committee on Legislation.

Armon M. Williams, chairman of the teacher-board relations committee reported on the meeting with the Education Committee of the board held during the past week. As a result of this report the teachers plan the meeting with the board on June 5.

The Carnival Cocktail Lounge

Speaking of the delightfully unusual, that's what you find in the CARNIVAL COCKTAIL LOUNGE of the Outwood Hotel. The entire lounge and its decor was dreamed up and skillfully executed by one of America's foremost club designer-decorators. It is truly worth the trip to see how artfully he has captured the circus-carnival atmosphere. Lions, tigers, giraffes, tight-rope artists and clowns all add to the make-up of the room. Bar and Table service is offered. You'll find it gay, refined, yet always in good taste. Turn off Rt. 611, 1 mile north of Swiftwater (1/4 mile in to the Outwood)
